

"Martin Luther King may have never made it to the promised land, but the vision of that promise inspired him to do everything he could to get there.

That vision — that promise — requires of us what it required of King: to be in solidarity with the poor, to counter the idolatry of wealth, to practice non-violence, and to seek justice and inclusivity in a culture dominated by suspicion and fear."

From "Living the Questions:
The Wisdom of Progressive Christianity"
by David M. Felten & Jeff Procter-Murphy
www.livingthequestions.com

